Sino-American Biotechnology and Pharmaceutical Professionals Association

Orange County/Los Angeles Life Science Conference

Co-organized by

Opportunities and Trends in the Commercialization of Next Generation Biomedical Systems

Time: Saturday, October 14, 2006

Location: CALIT2, 4100 Calit2 Building, Irvine, CA 92697-2800

Organizer: Sino-American Biotechnology and Pharmaceutical Association; Calit2 /UC, Irvine.

Overview:

This is a premier annual technology and business conference for entrepreneurs, scientists, industry executives, investors and policy makers in the biomedical industry in Southern California and Pacific Asia. You are cordially invited to join our members and sponsors to enjoy the event. For more information about SABPA and the conference, please visit <http://www.sabpa.org> or <http://www.sabpa.org/web/index.php>.

The main topics for this event will be on partnership and commercialization of next generation high content / high throughput biomedical systems. The representative technology platforms in this market space include genomic, proteomics, cellular and tissue, microfluidic chips, printing & sensing instruments, and related consumables used in the R & D and diagnostics markets. As there are many players with a myriad of technologies developed for molecular research, drug discovery and diagnostics, the path to commercialization success in this market is rather complex.

Market leaders and newly formed companies in the US, China and Southern California regions will present

- Technology and product development trends in high content/throughput systems in US & China
- Opportunities in the commercialization of high content / high throughput biomedical systems
- Investment opportunities in the US and China – Past, Present & Future
- Innovations in miniaturized / high content biomedical systems
